

FAMILY OF THINGS

Captivating, genuine, creative, passionate, and energetic are some of the many attributes that describe two individuals on opposite sides of the spectrum. Brad Barnham, is a musical theory/composition graduate and choral conductor, while Aaron Brown, is a jazz performance graduate, producer and drummer. Being thrown into a musical centrifuge, has resulted in the indie/alt-rock band Family of Things (FOT).

Based in Hamilton, Ontario, FOT has been a collaborative sorority since 2012. Working on a variety of projects and refining their sound, the group has been carved out in studios from New York City, Los Angeles, Nashville, Vancouver, and Toronto. Working closely with producer Peter Mol (Zerbin), the three have also been busy with multiple licensing and publishing monikers created in partnership with Mol's Hollywood based publisher.

September of 2016 marked the release of the 3 track self-titled E.P. "Family of Things", which quickly established a name for the group in North America, garnering praise and recognition from CBC, Indie Shuffle, Hype Machine and Spotify.

FOT is currently back in the studio, preparing for the release of their first full length album. Excited to push boundaries, and inspire listeners, FOT will continue to pursue new depths, while further celebrating art and community.

"It's so perfectly pulled off, with all the right twists and turns - I just can't help but say "yes". A very big yes."

- Jason Grishkoff (Founder & CEO of Indie Shuffle)

"Exceptionally smooth vocals that sit in the pocket exactly where it needs to be. Beautiful melodies."

- Adam Carter of CBC

“Passion and heart are at the forefront of any meaningful project, and for Family of Things (FOT), this couldn't be anymore true!”

- Purple Melon

“A fresh new face to Indie Shuffle coming all the way up from Canada. The tune is a catchy one that is full of energetic rhythms.”

- Indie Shuffle

“There's no going wrong with their song “Don't Look Back” – it's in my opinion the perfect indie rock song to listen, enjoy and jam to it the whole day. It gives you a certain special rush that only great quality music can create.”

- Wolf in a Suit

“Their impeccably produced tracks are powerfully rhythmic and full of swelling dynamics and emotion.”

- Ride the Tempo
